REPLY BRIEF OF DEFENDANTS.

PRELIMINARY STATEMENT.

On the sixth of March, 1917, the State of West Virginia and the individual members of the two Houses of her Legislature moved to discharge the rule in mandamus issued herein against them, and, at the same time, filed a brief in support of their motion, and the cause was submitted without oral argument, with leave to Virginia to file a reply within ten days to West Virginia's brief, and with like leave to West Virginia, within ten days thereafter, to rejoin to such reply.

Virginia has filed her reply brief, and, after stating the history of the litigation down to the institution of the present proceeding, undertakes to state the grounds of West Virginia's motion to discharge the rule in mandamus as follows:

> "This motion rests upon an assertion that (1) this Court has no power to compel the Legislature to levy a tax for the purpose of liquidating said decree; that (2) this Court has no power to enforce the judgment by it rendered; and that (3) the issuance of a writ of mandamus would be contrary to the principles and usages of law."

This is a misconception of West Virginia's brief.

ARGUMENT.

Whatever the fact may be, and whatever the opinion of counsel for West Virginia upon the subject of the enforceability of a money judgment against a State, it is incorrect to say either that West Virginia's motion to discharge the rule herein was based upon the proposition "that this Court has no power to enforce the judgment by it rendered", or that her counsel argued to that end. The rule presents no such question, and the effort was to confine the discussion to the single question raised. That question is whether or not mandamus may be numbered among the final writs, whatever they may be, that may go against a State; and the contention was that, whatever else might be done, mandamus at least would not lie to coerce the legislative department of a State. Indeed, the argument practically conceded that a writ of execution could issue upon a judgment against a State, and could be levied upon any property that the State might own, provided the same had not been devoted to governmental purposes, and the debt satisfied therout; but, if devoted to governmental purposes, the writ would simply be returned nulla bona, as in the case of a judgment against a private individual who had no property subject to execution.

In order that the distinction may be clear, and the complainant's misconception italicized, we will, for the convenience of the Court, set forth again at this place the exact grounds of the defendants' motion to discharge the rule. They are:

1. A writ of mandamus from the Supreme Court of the Nation coercing the legislative department of a State, and compelling it to enact a revenue law, or to lay a tax for State purposes, would infringe upon the constitutional rights of the States expressly reserved unto them by the Tenth Amendment to the Federal Constitution.

2. The constitutional grant of jurisdiction to hear and determine controversies between States does not include, as an incident to such jurisdiction, the power to enforce a judgment, rendered in the exercise thereof, by a writ of mandamus addressed to a State Legislature, coercing and controlling it in the exercise of its legislative functions.

3. Such a writ for such a purpose would be contrary to the principles and usages of law, and does not fall within the category of final writs against a State.

4. It is not the office of a writ of execution, nor can it be of any writ used as a substitute therefor, to create property, by legislation or otherwise, for the satisfaction of a debt, but only to seize and subject property already in existence for that purpose.

5. Sec. 8 of Art. 8 of the West Virginia Constitution of 1863 imposed no ministerial duties upon the Legislature of the State, but only judicial and legislative duties.

6. Mandamus is a discretionary writ, and to issue it in this case would give an undue advantage to the relator, and operate unjustly against the respondents.

DOES MANDAMUS LIE UNDER THE FEDERAL CONSTITUTION FROM THIS COURT TO THE LEGISLATIVE DEPARTMENT OF A STATE FOR THE PURPOSE OF COMPELLING IT TO ENACT REVENUE LAWS FOR THE CREATION OF A FUND FOR THE PAYMENT OF A JUDGMENT AGAINST THE STATE?

This presents a constitutional question of more transcendent importance than any that has been presented to this Court throughout its history. It is said, upon the one hand, to involve the integrity and efficiency of the judicial department of the Federal Government, and it is certainly true that it involves, upon the other, the existence of the States. The forty-eight States of the Union may well view the outcome with fear and trembling, for, if Virginia should be right in her contention, these States would fall into the helpless condition of purely administrative sub-divisions of the Federal Government, stripped even of that partial sovereignty that was reserved unto them by the Constitution, and their capacity to exist threatened, if not destroyed. If such a writ should be proper, it would necessarily operate upon the individual members of the two Houses of the legislative department of the State, and, if they should disobey its mandate, however unsatisfactory the reason, they might lie in jail for contempt during their terms of office; and this would not bring the tax or pay the debt, but it would leave the State without a legislative department, and operate the destruction of the commonwealth. One could scarcely conceive of such a result, and certainly would not anticipate it; but, even in an obedient effort to comply with the mandate, no member would be acting as a legislator. He would not be a lawmaker, for the law would have been already made. He would exercise no choice, judgment or discretion, although clothed with the lawmaking power of the State. Every element of legislative action would be absent, as well as parliamentary procedure. The roll call would be unnecessary, for there would be no negative votes, and legislative committees would be without use, for the reason that the statute would be passed before it had been introduced. The free agency of the State in laying a purely State tax for a State purpose would be crushed and destroyed, its political power taken away, and the judiciary set in its place. Such was not the intention of the framers of the Constitution. Each government was to be supreme in its own particular sphere, and that the power of State taxation for State purposes was reserved exclusively unto the States was, and is, plainly expressed in the Tenth Amendment to the Constitution. Such a writ, in the light of our institutions, cannot be one of the incidents of jurisdiction.

But it is insisted by counsel for the State of Virginia that Sec. 2 of Art. 3 of the Constitution gave this Court jurisdiction over "controversies between two or more States", and that the power thus given to hear and determine such controversies carries with it, as a necessary implication, the power to enforce any judgment that might be rendered in the exercise of such jurisdiction; that execution is a necessary incident to the exercise of jurisdiction; otherwise, that "judicial power" would mean "judicial impotence".

Execution is a corollary to jurisdiction, but the corollary must not be broader than its foundation. Final writs must be in accordance with the usages and customs of law, and must not violate the Constitution. They travel the beaten path, and nothing extraordinary is required. Courts are not expected to violate principle, history and the Constitution, to the end that the collection of debts may be guaranteed. Proper processes only are promised, and, if they fail, extraordinary writs cannot be expected, because not within the judicial power; for judicial power means power according to the forms of law, and that means according to the usages and principles of jurisdiction as fixed by the history of our jurisprudence. Parliamentary duties have never been interfered with by the judicial department of the government of any English speaking people; and, although our dual government presents a peculiar situation, yet we are a people with a written Constitution, and the duality of that government has been hedged about by express provisions. A State that seeks a judgment against another and the enforcement thereof must not only keep within the terms of the Constitution, but must keep as well within the theory of our government, and any writ that destroys the integrity of the States is just as much anathema as any failure of the writ would be the other way. The whole world is in a state of ferment, and the only people therein who have any hope at all are those who have a written Constitution, lived up to. Implications are not well understood by common folks, and the stretch of the letter by implication, to the end that delegated power may swell its bounds beyond the rights reserved, would, we fear, be not only violative of the letter, but destructive of the spirit, and disastrous in the end.

No one nowadays believes in State rights in the technical sense, as originally advocated by the complainant in this cause; but there is a Constitution, with its reservations, to which we must cling; otherwise, the profoundly conceived and patriotically maintained advantages of a dual government will come to naught.

Neither would the refusal to issue a peremptory writ of mandamus in this case amount, as contended, to a declaration of "judicial incompetence", instead of "judicial power". Merely because this Court will not mandamus a legislature does not mean that it may not, in controversies between States, issue proper final processes for the enforcement of its decrees; but it would mean an unwillingness upon the part of this Court to resort, for any purpose or in any case in its exercise of "judicial power" under the Constitution, to any writ not in conformity to the usages and customs of law, or in violation either of the spirit or the letter of the Constitution. The same final writs lie against States that lie against individuals, and they may fail of their object in the one case as well as in the other, but in each the limit of judicial power has been reached, and there has been no dereliction in its exercise at any point.

There are no unusual difficulties with respect to the enforcement of the decrees of this Court by resort to final process in the usual way, and that marks the limit of judicial power as used in the Constitution. If a controversy arises between two States involving a question of State boundary, this Court assumes jurisdiction, and applies to the solution of the controversy all the machinery and flexible orders of a court of equity, resulting in the appointment of commissioners for the purpose of ascertaining and monumenting the true boundary, followed by a final decree that extends the jurisdiction of one commonwealth to the line so established, and excludes the jurisdiction of the other from the territory thus covered; and may give final effect to this decree in a thousand and one ways, the particular way being dependent upon the character of the judicial questions that may subsequently spring thereout. Following are some of the illustrative cases:

Rhode Island v. Mass., 12 Peters, 659; 9 L. ed., 1234.

Florida v. Georgia, 17 How., 478; 15 L. ed., 181.

Missouri v. Kentucky, 11 Wallace, 395; 20 L. ed., 116.

Indiana v. Kentucky, 159 U. S., 275; 40 L. ed., 149.

Again, in the event of a final judgment or decree against a State upon bonds issued by her, and owned and held by another State, if there be collateral to secure the payment of such bonds, there is no more difficulty in subjecting this collateral in full or partial satisfaction of the decree than there would be in the case of an individual, and such was the conclusion of this Court in the case of South Dakota v. North Carolina, 192 U. S., 286.

Likewise, in the case of a mere money judgment against a State, the writ would be one of the ordinary writs of execution, and would take its course as in the case of an individual; and the exercise of judicial power involves nothing more. It neither contemplates nor promises the unusual or the forbidden, and incompetence may not be predicated upon such a situation by any one, however anxious he may be to put money above the forms of law, and superior to the Constitution.

AUTHORITIES.

In the original brief of the complainant filed in support of its ex parte application for the rule herein, it cited the following authorities in support of the theory that mandamus would lie in the present instance as a substitute for the ordinary process of execution to enforce the payment of a judgment like the present:

Supervisors v. U. S., 4 Wall., 435;

Von Hoffman v. City of Quincy, 4 Wall., 535;
City of Galena v. Amy, 5 Wall., 705;
Riggs v. Johnson City, 6 Wall., 166;
Walkley v. City of Muscatine, 6 Wall., 481;
Labette County Comrs. v. Moulton, 112 U. S., 217.

And then, in its reply to the brief of West Virginia in support of its motion to discharge the rule, treats these cases, or some of them, as if they had been invoked as authority by the respondents (reply brief of Virginia, page 16).

These authorities were only mentioned and discussed in the original brief of West Virginia for the purpose of showing, as therein stated, that they "are beside the question, do not meet the situation, and throw no light whatever upon it" (W. Va.'s brief, pages 12-15). This is a peculiar piece of dialectics, to say the least, upon the part of counsel for Virginia.

These cases, one and all, present the ordinary case of a writ of mandamus granted by a federal district or circuit court, commanding a taxing board or district, county or municipality to lay a tax pursuant to a previous legislative mandate. Not a single one of them involved the performance of a legislative or discretionary function; but ministerial agents, previously appointed for the purpose of carrying out previously enacted legislative mandates, were compelled to give effect to the antecedent legislative will.

This line of authority is well established, well known and recognized, and at no point seeks to coerce, but to effectuate, legislative will. The State was not a party in either case, and the prerogatives of its legislative department were not sought at any point or in a single instance to be invaded or coerced. On the contrary, its will, and its will alone, was sought to be made supreme.

The authorities relied upon by West Virginia, and still insisted upon, were—

South Dakota v. North Carolina, 192 U. S., 286; 48 L. ed., 448;
Heine v. Board of Levee Comrs., 19 Wall., 655; 22 L. ed., 223;
Rees v. Watertown, 19 Wall., 107; 22 L. ed., 72;
Meriwether v. Garrett, 102 U. S., 472; 26 L. ed., 197;
Ex parte Ky. v. Dennison, 24 How., 66; 16 L. ed., 717;
Carter v. State, 42 La. Ann., 927;
People v. Morton, 156 N. Y., 136;
Ex parte Echols, 39 Ala., 698;
State v. Bolte, 151 Mo., 362.

In the first (South Dakota v. N. C.), Mr. Justice Brewer declares "the absolute inability of a court to compel a levy of taxes by the legislature" (192 U. S., 321).

In the second (Heine v. Board of Comrs.), Mr. Justice Miller uses the following language—

> "It is not only not one of the inherent powers of the Court to levy and collect taxes, but it is an invasion by the judiciary of the federal government of the legislative functions of the State government."
> (19 Wall., 661.)

In the third (Rees v. Watertown), Mr. Justice Hunt, in speaking of the power of taxation, says—

> "It is a power that has not been extended to the judiciary. Especially is it beyond the power of the federal judiciary to assume the place of a State in the exercise of this authority at once so delicate and so important."
> (19 Wall., 116-7)

In the fourth (Meriwether v. Garrett), Mr. Justice Field announces that—

> "No federal court, either on its law or equity side, has any inherent jurisdiction to lay a tax for any purpose, or to enforce a tax already levied, except through the agencies provided by law. However urgent the appeal of creditors and the apparent hopelessness of their position without the aid of the federal court, it cannot seize the power which belongs to the legislative department of the State and wield it in their behalf."
> (102 U. S., 518)

In the fifth (Ex parte Ky. v. Dennison), although Sec. 2 of Art. 4 of the Federal Constitution requires the executive authority of one State to deliver, upon the demand of the chief executive of another, fugitives from justice, and the Act of Congress of 1793 provided the regulations necessary to the execution of such constitutional provision, yet, upon the refusal of the Governor of Ohio to respond to the requisition of the Governor of Kentucky, this Court, speaking through Mr. Chief Justice Taney, in denying a writ of mandamus against the Governor of Ohio for the purpose of compelling him to surrender the fugitive, said:

> "But if the Governor of Ohio refuses to discharge this duty, there is no power delegated to the general government, either through the judicial department or any other department, to use any coercive means to compel him."
> (24 How., 109-110)

The other cases (People v. Morton, Ex parte Echols and State v. Bolte) illustrate the fact that the writ of mandamus never has been, and cannot be, in English or American jurisprudence, used as a means of compelling parliamentary or legislative action.

REPUDIATION.

Counsel for Virginia (or perhaps we should say counsel for the bondholders) charge West Virginia with repudiation. This is scarcely a fair statement. It is not repudiation to resist a premature application for a writ of execution, as was successfully done in this case. Neither is it repudiation to resist an application for a mandamus which the defendant conceives to be in violation of its constitutional rights.

Respectfully submitted,

E. T. ENGLAND,
Attorney General of West Virginia.

NAMES OF OWNERS, ETC.

On the 19th day of July, 1911, the Board of Public Works of the State of West Virginia, adopted the following order:

> "WHEREAS, There has been much demand in connection with the Virginia Debt Suit for the names of the persons who are holders of the so-called 'West Virginia Deferred Certificates,' issued by the State of Virginia with respect to the one-third of Virginia's debt prior to January 1, 1861, which that State arbitrarily set aside as the portion of such debt that the State of West Virginia should assume; and,

> "Ordered, That the list of the names and the addresses of the owners of such certificates, so procured, and also the names and the addresses of the owners of the Virginia coupon bonds and certificates of registered stock held by citizens of West Virginia as appears in the Journal of the Constitutional Convention of 1872, be printed in pamphlet form, for free distribution among the people of this State, and that six thousand (6,000) copies of such pamphlet be published." (Record Board of Public Works, No. 6.)

Present interest in this matter arises largely from the suit of the Commonwealth of Virginia against the State of West Virginia, instituted in the Supreme Court of the United States in the year 1906, to recover from West Virginia her "equitable proportion" of the public debt of Virginia existing on the first day of January, 1861, and amounting then to the sum of $33,897,073.82.

Under the Funding Acts of the General Assembly of Virginia, passed in 1871, 1879, 1882 and 1892, Virginia undertook to fund said debt and accrued interest. The owners of the old bonds were required to surrender the same for cancellation, and accept for such old bonds new bonds for two-thirds of the amount of the old bonds and interest and a certificate for the other one-third, which one-third Virginia arbitrarily declared was the portion of the debt for which West Virginia was liable. These certificates are known as "Virginia Deferred Certificates," and often are called "West Virginia deferred Certificates."

After several years of effort these certificates were gathered together, and finally placed in the hands of Brown Brothers & Company, of New York City, as depositary, who, previous to the bringing of said suit, turned the same over to the Virginia Debt Commission. When the holder of any of these certificates turned the same over to the depositary, he received a receipt in the form of an engraved certificate, of which the following is a copy:

VIRGINIA DEBT CERTIFICATES.

Receipt of

BROWN BROTHERS AND COMPANY.

This Certifies that Brown Brothers and Company have received the following certificate issued by the State of Virginia on account of that part of her Funded Debt assumed to be the proportion of the State of West Virginia, namely:

Certificate No.....

for ..... Dollars

Messrs. Brown Brothers and Company agree to hold said certificate in accordance with the terms of a certain agreement, dated July 15th, 1898, between John Crosby Brown, George Coppell, J. Kennedy Tod, and Clarence Cary, parties of the first part, and such persons as deposit their securities thereunder, parties of the second part. This receipt is negotiable, and all the interest of the owner of said certificate passes by the delivery hereof.

N. B. The deposited securities have been carefully examined, but no responsibility for their genuineness is undertaken by the issue of this certificate.

New York .....19..

It is understood that it is the above certificates of the depositary, which are negotiable and pass by delivery, that are listed and sold in the New York markets.

In connection with the above depositary's certificate, Brown

Brothers & Company, in a letter of March 15, 1911, to the Attorney General of West Virginia, says:

> "We regret to say that our records do not show the names or post office addresses of the certificate holders, either as of the first day of October, 1906, or of the first day of January, 1911, as you request. Our records show the names of the persons to whom Virginia issued the certificates, together with Virginia's number and the amount of each certificate respectively.
> "For your information we enclose cancelled copy of one of our receipts. These receipts are transferable by bearer and pass by delivery like any bearer bond.
>
> "The only method we have of communicating with holders of certificates is by advertising in the daily press of New York and London, as provided in the Depositing Contract.
> "We have had an estimate made of what it will cost to have the list of the holders of Virginia Certificates, as noted above, copied from our records for you, and are advised that the cost will be not to exceed $250. If you desire to have this information, and will advise us accordingly, we shall be pleased to have the work begun at once."

In a letter of March 24, 1911, Brown Brothers & Company say:

> "We can furnish you with the names (but not the addresses) of the persons to whom the State of Virginia issued the West Virginia Deferred Debt Certificates in so far as they have been deposited with us. Our Receipts are 'bearer' receipts, and our only means of communicating with the holders is by advertising.
> "Replying to your further question, our records do not show those persons residing in West Virginia who hold bonds and have not deposited them to receive certificates, and we have no means of ascertaining this information."

Again, in a letter of April 13, 1911, Brown Brothers & Company say:

> "As far as we are informed, a large part of the certificates deposited with us are held by the original holders of the old Virginia bonds, and have not been acquired by subsequent purchasers. These original holders will be shown by our list, but what transfers have been made will not be shown, for the reason stated in our previous letter."

The aid of the Virginia Debt Commission was invoked to obtain the names and addresses of the owners of the Virginia Deferred Certificates, but without success. Under date of January 18, and March 18, 1911, the Hon. John B. Moon, Chairman of that Commission, writes:

> "I beg to say that the exhibits show that certificates to the amount of $13,173,435.41, as of January 6th, 1906, had been deposited with the New York Depositing Committee, consisting of John Crosby Brown, chairman, R. P. Chew, Wm. C. Legendre, Clarence Carey, J. Kennedy Todd, George F. Baker and Bartlett S. Johnson; and of which committee Brown Brothers & Company were the depository; which certificates were on the date last named transferred to and placed at the disposal of the Virginia Commission, as shown in said exhibits.
> "Since the date last above named the said Depositing Committee have placed under the control and disposition of the Virginia Debt Commission $333,426.36 more of said certificates, upon the conditions above named, making the whole amount now under control of the Virginia Commission $13,506,861.77.
> "There were, as I understand it, a large number of receipts given by the above-named Depository of the Depositing Committee for these certificates, which were in large part for fractional amounts, and many of these receipts have doubtless been transferred since they were issued, so that a list of the original depositors would not be any certain guide as to the present claimants."
> "I do not believe that over $5000 or $7500 of these certificates appeared to come from any one in West Virginia, but this, of course, is only a matter of impression and belief on my part."

In response to a resolution of the West Virginia State Senate, adopted on February 4, 1911, the Attorney General of West Virginia stated:

> "The pleadings in the case do not disclose the names nor the residences of the holders of the Virginia, or so-called 'West Virginia certificates;' it was not a subject of inquiry referred to the Master in the order of reference entered by the court, and for that reason no evidence could be taken before the Master on that subject; after the completion of the Master's report counsel for West Virginia petitioned the Supreme Court of the United States on the 18th day of April, 1910, for the right to take testimony on matters not referred to said Special Master, the primary object of which was for the purpose of ascertaining the information asked for in section six of said Senate resolution, and after consideration of the petition the court refused to direct the taking of such testimony; subsequently the Attorney General endeavored to ascertain this information by letter and by personal application from the depositaries of such certificates in New York City, and from the Honorable John B. Moon, Chairman of the Virginia Debt Commission, and that such efforts have not been successful. The Attorney General, therefore, does not have such information and he is unable to furnish the same to your honorable body."

The Board of Public Works now exhibits to the public all the information it has in its possession respecting the ownership of said bonds, stocks and certificates, which is all it has been enabled to obtain; and begins with the list reported by the Hon. Arthur I. Boreman, the first Governor of the State, to the Constitutional Convention of 1872, (see pp. 78-85 of the Journal of the Constitutional Convention of 1872,) as follows:

GOVERNOR BOREMAN'S LIST.

STATE OF WEST VIRGINIA,
EXECUTIVE DEPARTMENT,
WHEELING, February 22, 1869.

To the Senate and House of Delegates:

On the twenty-third day of January, 1868, the Legislature adopted the following resolution:

"Resolved by the Legislature of West Virginia:

"That the Governor of this State be requested to adopt such steps as he may deem proper and expedient to ascertain the amount of registered and coupon bonds of the State of Virginia, held and owned by citizens of the State of West Virginia, on the twentieth day of June, eighteen hundred and sixty-three, and still so held by citizens of this State, together with the names of the persons holding the same, and the several amounts held by them."

And on the sixth day of November, 1868, I sent a notice to, and had it published in, the newspapers in the different sections of the State, setting forth that on the first day of December, 1868, and thereafter until the first day of February, 1869, I should proceed to perform the duty devolved on the Governor by said resolution. A copy of which notice is hereto attached. I herewith transmit an account of the bonds presented to me, in pursuance of said resolution and notice, and which, in my judgment, are comprehended by the terms of the resolution. There were others presented, some of which were issued by Virginia during the rebellion, and others since, and others again, owned by persons who were not citizens of the state at the dates mentioned in the resolution, of which I have taken a description, but have not included them in the accompanying account because, in my opinion, they did not come within the terms of the said resolution.

A. I. BOREMAN.

(Copy of Notice to Bondholders.)

STATE OF WEST VIRGINIA,
EXECUTIVE DEPARTMENT,
WHEELING, Nov. 6, 1868.

The undersigned will proceed, on the first day of December next, and thereafter until the first day of February, 1869, to perform the duty required of him by a resolution adopted by the Legislature of West Virginia, on the twenty-third day of January, 1868, which resolution is as follows:

> "Resolved by the Legislature of West Virginia:
> "That the Governor of this State be requested to adopt such steps as he may deem proper and expedient to ascertain the amount of registered and coupon bonds of the State of Virginia, held and owned by citizens of the State of West Virginia, on the twentieth day of June, eighteen hundred and sixty-three, and still so held by citizens of this State, together with the names of the persons holding the same, and the several amounts held by them."

The undersigned deems it his duty to inspect each bond before he can report its existence, and, therefore, the persons who hold bonds which they wish reported, under the above resolution, are required to produce the same, before the undersigned, in order that such inspection may be had.

An affidavit of the claimant, or some one else, will also be required that the bonds were "held by such claimant on the twentieth day of June, 1863," and "were still so held" by him or her on the day the above resolution was adopted, to-wit: On the twenty-third day of January, 1868, and that such claimant was a citizen of West Virginia on both of the days mentioned.

A. I. BOREMAN, Governor.

LIST OF VIRGINIA COUPON BONDS AND CERTIFICATES OF REGISTERED STOCK HELD BY CITIZENS OF WEST VIRGINIA, AND WHICH HAVE BEEN PRESENTED AND INSPECTED BY THE GOVERNOR UNDER JOINT RESOLUTION NO. 2 OF THE LEGISLATURE, ADOPTED JANUARY 23, 1868.

Held by Hon. James H. Brown, of Kanawha County:

One bond for $800, dated January 22, 1859, issued to James H. Brown, with interest from January 1, 1859; redeemable January 1, 1893. Date to which interest was last paid unknown	$800.00
One bond for $700, dated October 25, 1860, issued to same, with interest from July 1, 1860, redeemable January 1, 1890. Date to which interest was last paid unknown.....	700.00
	$1,500.00

Effort was made to ascertain which of the foregoing bonds in Governor Boreman's list had been funded under the said Funding Acts of 1871, 1879, 1882 and 1892. For this purpose Governor Boreman's list was furnished to the Second Auditor of Virginia at Richmond. Under date of June 22, 1911, that office furnished the list following, headed "Second Auditor's List," accompanied by a letter, in which it was stated:

> "I traced the record of the bonds specified in the lists on pages 80 to 85 of the Journal of the Constitutional Convention, and have entered opposite each its history so far as it can be obtained. Several of the certificates I failed to locate for lack of sufficient data in your volume, to either start or guide me in tracing them. You will observe, however, that but few of them have not been funded since the publication of your list. I think it but reasonable to assume that those which I did not trace have, as others, been exchanged.
> "No State record contains the addresses of the former holders of bonds as specified, and, therefore, I am unable to furnish them, but as almost the entire number of these securities have changed both hands and form, perhaps several times since the publication of your list, I suppose the names and localities of the 1861 holders would avail you nothing now."

SECOND AUDITOR'S LIST.

"List of Virginia Coupon Bonds and certificates of Registered stock held by citizens of West Virginia and which have been presented and inspected by the Governor under Joint Resolution No. 2 of the Legislature, adopted January 23, 1868."

(From Journal Constitutional Convention of West Virginia, 1872.)
